

The Young IPA Podcast – Episode 118 with Boston Edwards and Robby Soave

Publish Date:

July 2019

---

On this week's show James and Pete discuss Voice to Parliament, how Boris Johnson is going to make the Queen give speeches until Britain leaves the EU, Facebook's big fine and run through this week's heroes & villains. IPA Campus Coordinator Boston Edwards joins the show to talk strategy for storming Area 51, his path to Generation Liberty and his deep love of ABBA (17:10-26:55). Then we talk to Robby Soave, associate editor at Reason, about his new book Panic Attack: Young Radicals in the Age of Trump, confected outrage online and how to save journalism (28:17-51:32). We also have the anti-Israel practice exam given to students, Marianne Williamson climbing the polls, the Victorian government's plan to fix congestion with soba noodles and how the end to the cricket World Cup was diabolical.

The Young IPA Podcast is available on all podcast platforms. Click here for iTunes/Apple Podcasts