

“The Political Class Took The Side Of Radical, Lawless Protestors”

Publish Date:

June 2020

A daily email by free market think tank the Institute of Public Affairs, providing the latest economic data and policy measures for journalists, commentators and IPA members.

Daily IPA comment attributable to Daniel Wild, Director of Research at the Institute of Public Affairs:

“The inequitable application of the COVID-19 lockdown measures is a direct attack on Australia’s egalitarian, liberal democratic institutions at the heart of which is equality before the law.”

“The failure of police to issue fines to protestors for breaking social distancing rules demonstrates that these rules have nothing to do with public health or medical science.”

“The political class took the side of radical, lawless protestors over mainstream Australians who want to go back to work and re-open their businesses.”

“All Australians should immediately be allowed to return to work.”
